Anyone who loves sports will agree that cheating is bad. For example, it was simply wrong for Spain to enter people who were not actually DISABLED into the 2000 Sydney Paralympics basketball team. But sometimes, it is hard to draw a line between what is cheating and what is not. Many sports ENCOURAGE players to be 'sporting', that is, to play honestly and accept when they lose. However, in sports, the prizes for winning are great, so it is natural for people to use different ways to win a game. Sometimes players cheat or bend the rules to get an advantage in a game.

Gamesmanship is when you try to win a game by bending the rules or using dubious TACTICS. For example, when British Team cyclist Philip Hindes had a bad start in a team race in the 2012 Olympics, he didn't want to let his team down, and since he knew that if a rider fell early, the race would be restarted, he crashed his bike on purpose. Britain went on to win gold.

Other examples of gamesmanship are when players fake injuries or waste time. This might give them a chance for a short rest, or it could ANNOY their opponent and affect their concentration. For example, at the 2016 Rio Olympics, badminton player Carolina Marins screamed and shouted every time her opponent made a mistake. This affected her opponent's feelings, and people thought she behaved RUDELY. However, she won the gold medal without breaking any rules.
