Containers are large, metal boxes. People put things in these boxes and send them to other cities or countries. But containers are great for another thing: houses.

Benjamín García Saxe is from San José, Costa Rica. He designs container houses. He puts two or three containers together. Then he cuts a space for the windows and doors, and puts a roof on top.

Saxe's houses are large, but they're cheap and easy to build. They're also good for the environment because Saxe uses old containers to make them.

Gabriela Calvo and Marco Peralta live in a container house. It has a living room, a kitchen, a bathroom, and two bedrooms. Gabriela and Marco are very happy with their home.

Subject: A new apartment!

1 Hello !

2 _____? 3 _____. I'm in my new apartment here in Lisbon. It's small, but it's nice. It has a kitchen, a bathroom, a living room, and a bedroom. It's near the train station, so it's easy to go to college now. It's also next to a nice park.

How's college? And how's your new apartment?

4 _____!
