GREAT WALL OF CHINA

If you build a wall in your backyard, your family might be impressed. If, like the Chinese, you build a wall that is nearly four thousand miles long and can be spotted from space, the whole world will be impressed.

WONDERS OF THE MEDIEVAL WORLD

Around the 7th century BC, several Chinese feudal states began constructing their own separate walls made mostly of stone, brick and wood.
The walls were built to keep out the dangerous nomadic groups that preyed on unprotected villages.
During the Qin and Ming dynasties, the Chinese people began to connect all the separate walls into the massive structure that it is today. It almost goes without saying that the Great Wall of China, as confirmed by the Guinness Book of World Records, is still the longest wall in the world.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

FILL IN THE BLANKS

CHOOSE THE CORRECT ANSWER FROM THE WORD BOX

BRICK	NOMADIC	MING
GUINNESS	CHINESE FEUDAL

1. The Great Wall of China began during the Qin and _____ dynasties when the Chinese people started to connect all the separate walls in their villages.

2. This massive structure was constructed in order to protect the villagers from the dangerous _____ groups that try to conquer their lands.

3. The _____ Book of World Records, which declared the Great Wall of China as the longest wall in the world, is known for keeping track of all kinds of statistics and is updated annually.

4. In the early 7th century BC, Chinese feudal states used stone, _____ and wood to build their own separate walls.

5. _____ states follow a military hierarchy in which a ruler or lord offers mounted fighters a unit of land to control in exchange for a military service.

LIVEWORKSHEETS