If you haven't been to New York, you haven't lived.

- We use zero conditionals to talk about something which is always true or always happens as a result of something else. We use if + present simple, and the present simple in the other clause.
- You can also use the present continuous or present perfect in either clause.

first conditional

If the photos are good, I'll send them to you. 4.10

I'll have finished in an hour if you don't disturb me.

- We use first conditionals to talk about something which will probably happen in the future as a result of something else. We use if + a present tense, and a future tense in the other clause.
- You can use any present form in the if-clause (present simple, continuous, or perfect) and any future form (will, going to, future perfect, future continuous) or an imperative in the other clause.

future time clauses

Take your umbrella in case it's raining when you leave work.

- Future time clauses are similar to the if-clause in first conditional sentences, but instead of if, we use expressions like: as soon as, when, until, unless, before, after, and in case followed by a present (not a future) tense. This can be any present form, e.g. present simple, present continuous, present perfect. We can use any future form or imperative in the other clause.
- We use in case when we do something in order to be ready for future situations / problems. Compare the use of if and in case:
- I'll take an umbrella if it's raining. = I'll only take an umbrella if it's raining.
- I'll take an umbrella in case it rains. = I'll take an umbrella anyway because it might rain.
