I think we will have to call off the meeting or at least put it off to a later date. If we hold it on the proposed date, I don't think many people will turn up. Do you mind if I quickly run through the agenda with you? There's a lot to get through this time, especially because Marketing has put forward 3 new plans. We can't run over as the meeting room is fully booked that day and I am sure other issues will come up as we discuss the new products. I hope no one brings up the office relocation, we don't have any new information to share so if they do, we will just have to move on and talk about something else.
