RAYA: I know what you’re thinking. A lone rider. A dystopian world. land that’s gone to waste. How did this world get so _____? Well, that all began 500 years ago. Kumandra. This is what we _____ to be. When our land _____ whole, and we lived harmoniously alongside... dragons. Magical creatures who _____ us water and rain and peace. It was paradise. But then, the Druun _____. A mindless plague that spread like wildfire, multiplying as they consumed life and _____ everyone they touched into stone. The dragons _____ for us the best they could, but it wasn’t enough. That’s when the Mighty Sisudatu, the last dragon, _____ all her magic into a gem and..._____ the Druun away. Everyone that was turned to stone _____. Except the dragons. All that was left of Sisu was her gem. It should have been this big inspirational moment, where humanity _____ over her sacrifice. But instead, people being people, they all fought to possess the last remnant of dragon magic. Borders _____ drawn, Kumandra divided.

We all _____ enemies, and the gem had to be hidden. But that's not how the world _____.
That didn't truly happen until 500 years later, when I came into the story.
