"THE LION AND THE MOUSE"

Once upon a time, in a forest the lion was sleeping, a little mouse ran up the lion's neck and slid down his back and suddenly the lion woke up and caught with his big paw.

I'm sorry, King lion, please don`t eat me", the mouse squeaked.

"You woke me up", said the lion in a big voice.

"King Lion, if you let me go, I can help you someday," the mouse begged.

"Ha! You are too small to help me, you are too small to eat," the lion laughed.

"Thank you!" the mouse said and ran away.

A few days later, a hunter put a trap near to the tree for hutting to the lion, the mouse heard the lion roaring. She quickly ran toward the sound. She saw the lion tied in a big net.

"I will help you, King lion," she told him. The lion tried to laugh but he was sad.

The mouse started chewing the net. Soon, the lion was free.

"I didn't think you could do it. Thank you, I'm free. You're the best friend there ever could be!" the lion said.

The story of the lion and the mouse teaches us an important lesson about kindness and friendship. We should never judge others based on their size or appearance.
