The coffee story

Group 2

Those hard things were coffee beans, and Kaldi discovered them in Ethiopia more than 1000 years ago. At least, that's the traditional story. Perhaps, it is true, perhaps, not. Nobody knows. But we know that coffee grew first in Ethiopia, and we know that somebody discovered it there more than 1000 years ago.

After that, Arab travellers took coffee plants to Egypt and other Arab countries. Arab farmers began to grow coffee plants. People learnt to make a drink from the beans, and they called it qahwa.
