Match the following types of functions to their descriptions

• User-defined functions	These are the functions we create in our code.
• Imported or external functions	These are external functions which are part of the Python interpreter like print()or input().They can be used without importing.
• Built-in functions	These are functions that are a part of different modules. You can use them after importing the module or part of the module into your code.

LIVEWORKSHEETS