Todd: Okay. So, Sarah, I see you eat soup every day at work. Why are you eating soup every day?

Sarah: That's _____ I love to cook soup.

Todd: So, you make the soup?

Sarah: Yes, it's very easy to make.

Todd: So, you cook it _____ you just bring it to work every day?

Sarah: Yeah. I just make a lot on Monday and then I bring it to work every day of the week.

Todd: Oh nice. So how do you make the soup? What's your secret?

Sarah: Well, I like to cook very easy. So, I buy meat that's already cut up, usually, chicken and then some rice, usually brown rice and then I buy some vegetables. _____ I bought the ingredients; I chop them up and I put them all together in water until it boils and add some seasoning.

Todd: Okay. So, you say the water boils, so _____ the water boils that's _____ you put in all the ingredients?

Sarah: Yes, that's right.

Todd: So, you don't put in the ingredients before the water boils.

Sarah: No. I guess, it's just easier for the water to be hot because then the vegetables and the meat cook a little faster.

Todd: So how do you give the soup flavoring?

Sarah: I usually add salt and pepper, _____ some garlic. And depending on the type of soup, either maybe some soy sauce or lemon juice.

Todd: Okay. Do you put in the flavoring after you put in the ingredients or before you put in the ingredients?

Sarah: Maybe after but usually, right about all at the same time.

Todd: Okay.

Sarah: _____ I just put everything in at one time.

Todd: And then after you cook the soup, do you put the soup in the refrigerator? Do you let it sit outside?

Sarah: I usually eat some right then, and I also put it in containers for the week. _____ I let it sit in the containers out on the counter for a while for it to cool before I put in the refrigerator.

Todd: All right. And so, you don't put it in the refrigerator _____ it is cool?

Sarah: Until it's about room temperature.

Todd: Okay, nice. And then how do you heat it up? Do you heat it up in a pot or do you heat it up in the microwave?

Sarah: In the microwave. It's the easiest.

Todd: Yeah. Nice. So, you make enough for five meals?

Sarah: Maybe, sometimes.

_____ I think I will get tired of eating it during the week then maybe I'll just make enough for three or four meals. But if it's some kind that I think is really delicious and I know I want to eat it every day, then I'll make a lot.

Todd: Well, if that happens, when you make the soup, you can make it for six or seven and give me a bowl.

Sarah: Okay. I'll do that next time.

Todd: Oh great. Thanks.
