COMPLETE THE TEXT WITH IDIOMS

Sarah has always been known for her ability to _____. Whether it's at work or in her personal life, she has consistently come up with innovative solutions to problems that leave others in awe. It's as if she has _____ because she can spot opportunities and issues that no one else notices.

However, on the day of her big presentation, she seemed a bit nervous. Her voice had a bit of a croak, almost as if she _____. She explained that she couldn't help it; she has _____ lately, daydreaming about her upcoming vacation.

As she started her presentation, her anxiety seemed to vanish when her colleague, Mark _____ by assisting with the technical aspects. Mark's help made her feel like she _____, but in a good way.

Just as she started to gain confidence, the weather outside took a turn for the worse. It began to _____, but Sarah remained unfazed. She continued with her presentation, impressing everyone with her creativity and poise.

After the successful presentation, Sarah was relieved and decided to _____ to the airport for her vacation. She thought the whole experience was a _____ and even considered it a good omen.

Later, as she prepared to _____ in her hotel room, she received a message from her boss: "Great job today, Sarah!. She couldn't help but smile, knowing that her hard work had paid off.

LIVEWORKSHEETS