A. PIGS WON'T MAKE YOU SNEEZE OR WON'T MAKE YOUR HOUSE DIRTY
B. PIGS WANT TO CUDDLE AND THEY'LL LET YOU KNOW ABOUT IT
C. PIGS' BEHAVIOUR DIFFERS MUCH FROM THAT OF DOGS
D. PIGS CAN LEARN LOTS OF DIFFERENT TRICKS
E. PIGS WILL MAKE EXTREMELY QUIET PETS
F. PIGS ARE VERY CURIOUS ANIMALS

FOUR REASONS PIGS MAKE AWESOME PETS

4.1.

Grown-ups may not think it's cool if your pet pig gets into the fridge. But it'll certainly keep you entertained! Pigs are a lot like dogs. It's easy to train them to follow commands. And did you know pigs are thought to be about as smart as dolphins? They can learn to roll over and shake a hoof as easily as they can master doors – fridge included.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

4.2.

You'll often see pigs with their snouts to the ground. That's because they're always checking out their environment. Just like dogs, which sniff everything around them, pigs rely on their sense of smell to map out their surroundings. And here's a fun fact – pigs can smell up to 25 feet underground!

4.3.

Ever petted a pig? If you have, you know they're not as soft as say, a cat. But that's because they don't have fur, they have hair. A pig's hair feels scratchy, but that's actually a good thing for anyone who is allergic to animals. The bristly hair pigs have is hypoallergenic, meaning it's unlikely to cause an allergic reaction. Another bonus, their hair doesn't shed, so you won't be cleaning it up all the time.

4.4.

Like us, pigs are pack animals. So they want attention and time with their loved ones. You'll know it when your pet pig wants it because they have some serious communication skills. They can bark, cough, squeal and even laugh! Okay, it's an extra joyful squeal that sounds like laughter. But pigs only use it when they're really happy about something. If a pig considers you their friend, you'll be greeted with a happy squeal! They might even follow that up by rolling on their back for a tummy rub.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH MY MONSTERA?

Why aren't my monstera leaves splitting?

When you think of monsteras, you probably think of the characteristic leaf holes that set monsteras apart from other plants. So it can be really frustrating when your leaves won't split!

There are usually two reasons for this.

First, your plant might be too young. Monstera leaves typically won't split until they're 2–3 years old, so if you have a young plant, be patient! Continue to take great care of your plant and you'll be rewarded!

The other reason is that your plant might not be getting enough light. If your older monstera isn't producing holes, move it to an area with bright, indirect sunlight, and consider supplementing with a grow light if your home doesn't get enough sunlight.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

What do light brown spots on monstera leaves mean?

If the edges of your monstera turn a light brown color, your plant might be thirsty! If the soil feels dry, give it a drink and consider watering a little more than usual. You can trim off the dead edges, because they won't heal.

Written by Hanna N. on 14th February 2022:

I ordered my monstera in the shiny black pot. It arrived beautifully! I've ordered from City Plants in the past, in fact all the plants in my home are from City Plants, and I'm not even a plant person, never had plants in my life, and I couldn't be happier. I love their pots, so easy to care for, and so pleasing to the eyes. And their plants are of top quality. A big THANK YOU to the team at City Plants, for giving me a little green in my home.

>> City Plants replied:

Dear Hanna,

We are so happy that your plants are thriving and you are pleased with our service. Your loyalty is greatly appreciated Thank you!

MONSTERAS

One of the main reasons for the monstera's popularity is the shape of its leaves. I bet that someone probably took an artistic photo of their plant, the internet fell in love and it became trendy.

The truth is the pattern found in monstera leaves, combined with its vivid green color, makes it extremely beautiful. Companies caught on to the trend. Scrolling through social media sites like Instagram, Pinterest or Facebook, you can find monstera plants in the background of ads for popular brands.

The monstera's pattern can be found in artwork, clothing, dishes, phone covers…pretty much everywhere you look, there it is. And we love how exotic it looks.

The monstera perfectly fits into the current trend of interior design, which might explain its popularity as an indoor plant. In addition to its interesting leaf pattern, the monstera is also a large-sized plant. It doesn't do well in corners or windowsills, it needs space. For this reason, the plant becomes the central focus of a room, making it look full of life.

Tekst D

For this DIY you'll need:
♥ Sharp Knife
♥ Shape of a Monstera leaf printed out or drawn.
♥ Cutting Mat
♥ Glue
♥ Green Acrylic Paint
♥ Plexiglass (can be as thick as you want)

First draw or print out a shape of a monstera leaf of your liking. Keep in mind that the more details it has, the more complicated it will be to cut out.

Then trace the leaf to the plexiglass. I used a knife to carve it in lightly, but you can also use a marker.

Later it's time to use a knife to cut it out, carve it in and break off the remains carefully. Which can be tricky (mine broke at some spots I didn't wanted it to).

Finally, mix glue with a tiny bit of green paint. You could test the colour first on one of the scrap pieces to see if you like it. If you do, paint the whole leaf green, on one side. It's okay if the layer isn't even, I think that adds to it.

When you are done, let it dry completely.

Deshi turned off the computer and opened his English book. He had lots of homework but it was difficult to concentrate on irregular verbs. He couldn't stop thinking about the girl in the building opposite. He opened his bedroom window and looked across the street. Her window was open too and he could hear her practising a piece of classical music. "She's really good," thought Deshi, "and she probably hates rock music!" "Have you finished your homework?" Deshi's mum opened the door. "Hurry up, dinner will be ready in half an hour, and please tidy your room!" Suddenly, Deshi didn't feel hungry.

Deshi couldn't sleep that night and he got up late the next morning. He ran out of the house in time to see the bus leaving. Oh no! He was going to be late again. He looked around and there she was! She was sitting in her dad's car with the window open. He dropped his schoolbag and she turned to look at him. He couldn't move. Her eyes were green. He'd never seen anyone with green eyes before. He smiled at her but she just stared at him as if he didn't exist. Deshi could feel his face turning red. He picked up his bag and ran off.

He had a terrible day at school. He failed another maths test and the English teacher shouted at him for not concentrating in class. At lunch time, he couldn't eat. The food in the cafeteria was horrible, it just made him feel sick. And then, finally, he had to stay late after school for extra English, so he missed the bus again. He decided to walk home. He was crossing the park near his street, thinking about how he missed his school back in Shanghai and all his friends. Then he saw her. She was sitting on a bench with her dog. "Oh no, she's seen me," he thought. He didn't know what to do, so he smiled and waved at her but she just ignored him again. "Idiot!" he said to himself. "Why did I wave? Now she really hates me."

Later that evening, Deshi was in his room, practising his guitar with the headphones on. His friends in Shanghai thought he was very good. He had started a band with his friend Lang and they had played a concert at school. But now he didn't want anyone to hear him playing, especially her. He was thinking about getting a classical guitar when his mum came into the room. She was holding a letter. "The postman delivered this to the wrong building," she said. "It's for the building opposite. Can you take it across while I'm making dinner? And please, tidy your room!" "OK, mum!" he said. Deshi felt bad. Mum worked hard all day and then she had to look after him too. Maybe he should do more to help.

Deshi went down to the street feeling really unhappy. Mum was always working. School was really difficult and he had no friends in Boston. He was outside the opposite building when suddenly the door opened. "Oh no, it's her again," he thought. The girl was coming down the steps when she dropped something. It bounced down the steps and stopped at Deshi's feet.

Without thinking, he picked it up. "Hello?" she said, sounding frightened. "Who's there?" Deshi was confused. "Er, I live across the street. Are you OK?" "Oh, are you the boy who plays the guitar?" she said. "Hi, I'm Helen. I wanted to tell you I really like your music and I'm sorry my dad complained. He worries about me too much." Deshi looked at what he was holding. It was a white stick. She was blind.

6.1. When Deshi opened the window he

A. saw a girl walking on the street.

B. had to leave his room to eat dinner.

C. heard somebody playing a piece of rock music.

D. noticed somebody's presence in the building opposite.

A. He was asked to correct somebody's mistake.
B. His mother sent him to the post office.
C. He had to buy some things for dinner.
D. He went out to meet a girl.

6.5. From the last paragraph we learn that

A. some days everything goes wrong.
B. some things aren't always what they seem.
C. some people don't like you even if you're nice.
D. sometimes you should believe others instead of yourself.
