

Last year, I decided to fulfill my dream of climbing Mount Everest. I had been planning this adventure for months, and the day finally arrived when I flew to Nepal. The journey was long and tiring, but I was excited about the adventure that lay ahead.

When I arrived in Kathmandu, I immediately knew I was in for an incredible experience. The city was bustling with trekkers and climbers from all over the world. I checked into my hotel, where I met my fellow climbers. We quickly became friends and started preparing for our expedition.

The next morning, we set out for the Everest Base Camp. As we hiked higher into the mountains, the scenery became more breathtaking with each step. We were surrounded by snow-covered peaks and pristine forests. While we were hiking, it started to snow, and the temperature dropped significantly. We had to stop and build a snow shelter to rest and warm up. By the time we resumed our hike, the snow had stopped, and the sun had reappeared.

As we continued our journey, we encountered many challenges. The higher we climbed, the harder it became to breathe, and the cold was becoming unbearable. However, we were determined to reach the summit. By the time we had reached the Base Camp, we had been hiking for several days.

We spent a week at the Base Camp, acclimatizing to the altitude. During that time, I realized that I had made the right decision to embark on this adventure. The sense of accomplishment and the beautiful landscapes were worth all the difficulties we had faced.

When we finally attempted to reach the summit, it was a grueling climb. The thin air made it hard to breathe, and the steep slopes were challenging. We had to take several breaks to catch our breath. Eventually, we made it to the top of the world. Standing at the summit of Mount Everest was a moment I will never forget.

After spending some time at the summit, we began our descent. The journey down was just as challenging, but we had a deep sense of satisfaction knowing that we had achieved our goal. By the time we returned to Kathmandu, we had been away for a month, and we were physically and emotionally exhausted.

In the end, my trip to Mount Everest was an unforgettable adventure. It tested my limits and pushed me to overcome various obstacles. I returned home with a greater appreciation for the beauty of nature and the power of determination.

Reading comprehension questions:

1. True or False: The protagonist decided to climb Mount Everest last month.
2. True or False: The protagonist's journey to Nepal was long and tiring.
3. True or False: The group of climbers quickly became friends at the hotel.
4. True or False: The weather was always sunny and warm during the hike to the Base Camp.

5. True or False: The climbers had to stop and build a snow shelter during their hike.
6. True or False: The Base Camp was located at a higher altitude than the summit of Mount Everest.
7. True or False: The climbers spent a week at the Base Camp before attempting to reach the summit.
8. True or False: The protagonist found the descent from the summit to be easy and without challenges.
9. True or False: The protagonist's trip to Mount Everest lasted only a few days.
10. True or False: The protagonist returned home with a greater appreciation for nature and determination.