

Present Perfect Tense in Health and Safety at Work Technology

Instructions: Complete each sentence using the present perfect tense. Use the words in brackets to form your answers. Make sure to use the correct form of the verb.

1. I (complete) ____ the online safety training course last week. (complete)
2. The company (upgrade) ____ its safety equipment recently. (upgrade)
3. Mary (work) ____ here for five years. (work)
4. The safety inspector (visit) ____ our facility twice this year. (visit)
5. Tom (never, wear) ____ his safety helmet while working. (never, wear)
6. Our team (conduct) ____ several safety drills in the past month. (conduct)
7. The employees (receive) ____ first aid training from the company. (receive)
8. John (not, report) ____ any safety concerns to his supervisor yet. (not, report)
9. We (implement) ____ a new safety policy this month. (implement)
10. The manager (already, review) ____ the safety procedures with the new employees.

Bonus Activity: In pairs or small groups, discuss a workplace safety incident or improvement that has occurred at your workplace. Use the present perfect tense to talk about the experience.

Participants:

John, Sarah, & Mark

Conversation:

John: Hey, have you guys noticed anything different around here lately?

Sarah: Yeah, I have. They (upgrade) _____ the fire extinguishers in the lab.

Mark: Oh, that's great! We (need) _____ new ones for ages. When did they do that?

John: They (install) _____ them last week. It was about time; the old ones were practically unusable.

Sarah: And they (replace) _____ the emergency exit signs, too. They're much clearer now.

Mark: That's a relief. You remember that incident last year when the exit signs were barely visible during the power outage?

John: Yeah, that was scary. Thankfully, we haven't had any more incidents like that lately.

Sarah: Speaking of incidents, did you hear about the chemical spill in the storage room?

Mark: No, what happened?

John: Apparently, someone (spill) _____ a corrosive chemical, but they (clean) _____ it up promptly. No harm done, luckily.

Sarah: That's a relief. It's essential that people are trained to respond to such incidents.

Mark: Absolutely. We (conduct) _____ several safety drills recently, and they've helped us prepare for these situations.

John: We (not, have) _____ any serious accidents for a while now. I hope it stays that way.

Sarah: Agreed, let's all stay vigilant and continue reporting any safety concerns we come across.

Mark: Well, it's good to know that they're actively improving safety around here. It makes me feel more comfortable at work.

In this conversation, the present perfect tense is used to discuss recent safety improvements and incidents at their workplace. The employees are sharing their experiences and discussing the positive changes made to enhance safety.