Your vs You're

These two words are homophones. They sound the same but you have to write them differently.

Your

"Your" spelled like this is a possessive pronoun. It's the second person singular or plural.

You're

"You're" spelled like this is a contraction of you are.

Exercices

Chose the Correct Answer

1. _____ at my house.
2. _____ my sister.
3. _____ friend called me .
4. _____ reading in my book.
5. _____ cake is delicious.
6. _____ photobooth was so cool.
7. _____ a really good worker.
8. _____ cat has a really cool name.
9. _____ an aunt now.
10. Are these _____ pants?

Daphné Bergeron

Place the word at the right place _____ really lucky to be in Mr. Yves' class. He's one of my favourite teacher. Yesterday, _____ teacher came to me to talk about you. He said that _____ one of his favourite student. He also said that _____happiness affects all the other people in the class. I think _____ at _____ place in this English class.

LIVEWORKSHEETS