

Your vs You're

These two words are homophones. They sound the same but you have to write them differently.

Your

"Your" spelled like this is a possessive pronoun. It's the second person singular or plural.

THANK YOU
FOR YOUR ORDER

YOU'RE
THE Best

You're Invited!

You're

"You're" spelled like this is a contraction of you are.

Chose the Correct Answer

Place the word at the right place

- _____ at my house.
- _____ my sister.
- _____ friend called me .
- _____ reading in my book.
- _____ cake is delicious.
- _____ photobooth was so cool.
- _____ a really good worker.
- _____ cat has a really cool name.
- _____ an aunt now.
- Are these _____ pants?

_____ really lucky to be in Mr. Yves' class. He's one of my favourite teacher. Yesterday, _____ teacher came to me to talk about you. He said that _____ one of his favourite student. He also said that _____ happiness affects all the other people in the class. I think _____ at _____ place in this English class.

Daphné
Bergeron

