THE LIFE OF AN ASTRONAUT

Dr. Donald Pettit is a NASA astronaut.

Interviewer: I'm sure people ask you this question all of the time, Dr. Pettit, but I have to ask it: Have you ever been to space?

Dr. Pettit: Yes, I have. I was a crew member of Expedition 6, and I spent five and a half months at the International Space Station. We call it the ISS.

Interviewer: How many times have you gone up on the space shuttle?

Dr. Pettit: I've ridden the space shuttle to the ISS twice.

Interviewer: And what was the best part about being in space?

Dr. Pettit: Being able to float. It was the worst part, too.

Interviewer: Have you visited any other interesting places while working for NASA?

Dr. Pettit: Well, I lived in Russia for about two years while I was training to fly to the ISS. I've also been to Antarctica.

Interviewer: Not many people can say that! I understand that you like to work with tools. Have you ever invented anything?

Dr. Pettit: Yes. During my second trip into space, I made a special coffee cup so we could drink in space, much like we do here on earth. I just couldn't get used to drinking coffee out of a small bag through a straw!

Interviewer: I don't think I could get used to that, either. But why did you have to drink coffee that way before?

Dr. Pettit: Without the bag or my special cup, the coffee floats in space, too.

Interviewer: Of course! Well, you've accomplished so much, Dr. Pettit. Considering all of it, what's the most exciting thing that you've experienced?

Dr. Pettit: Seeing the birth of my twin boys.

Interviewer: Wow, what a life! Thanks so much for sharing, Dr. Pettit.
