Fred Raymond talks to Melissa Jones at Wales Street Dance (WSD), a dancing school in Pembroke, Wales. Melissa is a teacher there, so let's see what she says about dancing and teaching.

FRED Thank you for talking to We Dance magazine, Melissa. Tell us about what you do at WSD.

MELISSA Thank you, Fred. I teach children aged 12 or younger to dance to different types of music, such as street dancing, hip-hop, pop and jazz. I'm the headteacher at the school, but there are three more teachers who help me. I really love doing my job.

FRED What do you enjoy about it most?

MELISSA With this job, I can dance every day and learn about new artists and types of music. When I was younger, I danced in my free time, but now I can do it at work, too. But what I really love is working with children. They're fun and very creative.

FRED You teach very young children, aged two years old. Do you like that?

MELISSA I'm very interested in these groups. Dancing can help children when they're growing. We've got 'stretch classes' and 'baby moves' and parents are very happy with them. Their children are stronger and healthier because of what we do here at WSD.

FRED Great! And what do you enjoy doing in your free time, Melissa?

MELISSA My brother plays the drums in a band and I like going to his concerts at the weekends. But I'm usually busy, so I don't go very often. When I'm on holiday, I like travelling around Wales. It's a beautiful place.
