II. READING COMPREHENSION (10 POINTS)

Many people are like their siblings in some ways, but twins are often even more alike. If you are born at the same time as another baby and grow up with them, it is likely you will be similar to each other. But what would happen if you didn't know you had a twin? How alike would you be?

In the USA, a pair of identical twins was split up when they were adopted as four-month-old babies. Their new parents decided on their names and without knowing it, both called their son 'Jim'. These two boys spent all of their childhood and teenage years living separate lives in different places. And it wasn't until they were thirty-nine years old that they got to meet each other for the first time. They were quite surprised to find how similar they were.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

Although they didn't look exactly the same, they were both six feet tall and weighed 180 pounds. They discovered that during their childhood they had both had a dog named 'Toy' and as adults they had both married twice. Even more strangely, both of their first wives were called 'Linda' and their second wives were called 'Betty'. The Jims had each had a son. One of them had called theirs 'James Allan' while the other named theirs 'James Alan'.

The similarities didn't end there. They discovered that they had both worked as sheriffs, owned the same type of car, smoked the same cigarettes and drank the same beer. They also suffered from the same health problems, like severe headaches. In later research on the pair, a psychologist* noticed that they both bit their nails. This was rather unusual behavior among identical twins.

However, while they were very similar, there were also some clear differences. For example, one Jim preferred to express himself through writing while the other preferred speaking. They also had different hairstyles and one Jim had married a third time while the other hadn't.

Continued research on the Jim twins has proven to be very interesting and along with other research findings has led to the discovery that the personality and identity of twins who have grown up apart is as alike as those that haven't.
