EZ Screen Fans

@LizaPrav

goals

To tell you the truth
to put it...
disaster
make it through take off
anecdote
come over
rest
back rescue

Grace and Frankie S1 Ep 7

Chose one word from the box to complete each of the two collocations.

rest back rescue

1. ……. stories / ……. way
2. get to ……. / ……. of our lives
3. ……. dog / ……. team

Chose one collocation from above to complete the sentences.

Round one is when they tell the about all the kids, providing detailed histories for each one.
I can get you out of here the before he sees you.
After a long day of work, all I want to do is get and relax at home.
We've planned to travel and explore for the after retirement.
They decided to adopt a from the local shelter, giving a home to a furry friend in need.
The worked tirelessly to locate and assist those affected by the natural disaster.

Read the conversations out loud. Then make your own sentences with the marked words.

Speed dating

He: "Hello! Who do I have the pleasure of speaking with right now?"
She: "Hey, it's Sarah. Nice to talk to you! Usually, I start with a cute anecdote about myself. Once, I accidentally walked into a glass door thinking it was open – embarrassing, right?"
He: "Oh, that's funny! Well, next time you're free, you should come over. We can share more stories and have a good laugh."

anecdote:

come over:

Tinder dating

My dating experience last night? It was a complete disaster. I couldn't even make it through the appetizers without awkward silences. When I finally managed to say, "I should probably take off because I've gotta run," it was a relief.

disaster:

make it through:

take off:

Read the examples. Match the sentences with the explanations of the verb get in them.

Read the conversation. Fill in the gaps with the words in bold.

Grace: Guy! I didn't know you were in town
Guy: Look at you! How pretty you are!
Grace: Oh, how come you're not on the top of a mountain somewhere?
Guy: Why would I want to be on a mountain somewhere when I can look at your beautiful face instead of some Sherpa?
Grace: How long are you here?
Guy: Well, that's a good question. To tell you the truth, I'm getting a little older, a little tired. I'm thinking about hanging up my hat. Maybe I'll stay here.
Grace: You? You've never stayed in one place longer than five minutes. Have you talked to Robert since you've been back?
Guy: No. I heard rumors, though. I guess he's on an adventure of his own, isn't he.
Grace: Well, that's an interesting way to put it.

How do we in English?
, I wasn't a fan of the movie we watched last night.
, I've been feeling a bit overwhelmed with work lately.
His actions, diplomatically, were not in line with company policies

Read the article and choose the correct answers to the questions below.

A Woman on a Mission FAQs

So, you've encountered a woman on a mission, and you've got questions? You've come to the right place. Here's a handy guide to navigating the intriguing world of a woman on a mission.

We use it for messengers and social media videos:
FAQ - frequently asked question: a question in a list of questions and answers intended to help people understand a particular subject

Q: What's with her intense focus on everything?

A: To tell you the truth, she's not just focusing; she's on a mission! When she zeroes in on a goal, she's like a superhero trying to save the day, only with a strong coffee in hand.

Q: Why does she always say, "To put it..." before explaining something?

A: To put it simply, it's her way of adding a dash of drama to everyday situations. Whether it's describing her morning routine or detailing a recent cooking disaster, she knows how to make it sound like a blockbuster movie.

Q: Why does everything feel like a disaster around her?

A: Disaster is her middle name. Okay, not really, but sometimes it seems that way. From forgetting her keys to mixing up salt with sugar in her coffee, she turns every little mishap into an epic tale of survival.

Q: How does she manage to make it through tough times with a smile?

A: To tell you the truth, she's a pro at finding humor in chaos. Whether it's getting caught in the rain without an umbrella or realizing her phone battery died mid-call, she faces it all with a grin and a witty anecdote.

Q: Why does she often say, "I should probably take off because I've gotta run"?

A: Take off doesn't mean she's planning an impromptu vacation. It's her subtle way of gracefully exiting a conversation or situation. Don't worry; she'll be back with more tales to share soon.

Q: What's with the frequent invitations to "come over"?

A: Come over is her code for "let's share more stories." Whether it's discussing the latest TV shows or reminiscing about the rescue of her neighbor's cat from a tree, she loves good company.

Q: Why does she emphasize the importance of "rest"?

A: Rest is sacred in her mission-driven life. After a day filled with adventures and anecdotes, she knows the value of a good rest. It's her way of recharging for the next round of missions.

In conclusion, encountering a woman on a mission is like stumbling upon a live comedy show. You never know what hilarious anecdote she'll share next, but one thing is for sure: it's bound to be an entertaining journey!

What does the woman mean when she says, "To put it simply..."?
- A. She's about to complicate things.
- B. She's about to provide a straightforward explanation.

How does the woman approach everyday mishaps and disasters in her life?
- A. She takes them seriously and gets stressed.
- B. She turns them into epic tales with humor.

Why does she often suggest, "I should probably take off because I've gotta run"?
- A. She's not interested in the conversation.
- B. She's hinting at a quick escape with humor.

What does the phrase "come over" signify in her conversations?
- A. She's inviting people to her house.
- B. She wants others to join her on a mission.

Why does the woman emphasize the importance of "rest" in her mission-driven life?
- A. She values relaxation and rejuvenation.
- B. She doesn't believe in resting.

LIVEWORKSHEETS