Oh, no! I had been trying to spell it for so long that I was too tired to come to school.

Past Simple

is used for:

- past actions that took place immediately one after the other.
He got in the car, started the engine and drove off.

- past habits or states which are now finished. In such cases, we can also use the expression used to.
When he was young, he rode/used to ride his bike to school.

- a complete action or event which happened at a stated time in the past.
She passed her exam last week. (When? "Last week" – stated time in the past)

- complete past actions not connected to the present with a stated or implied time reference
Elvis Presley made lots of records. (Elvis is dead; he won't record any more – period of time now finished – implied time reference)

Past Continuous

is used for:

- an action which was in progress at a stated time in the past. We do not know when the action started or finished.
At 1 o'clock this afternoon they were having coffee.

- a past action which was in progress when another action interrupted it.
I was playing football when I broke my ankle. (The action in progress – was playing (Past Continuous) – was interrupted by another action – broke. Past Simple)

- two or more actions which were happening at the same time in the past (simultaneous actions).
He was cooking while she was sleeping.

- background description to events in a story/description.
They were travelling to Swansea ...

Past Perfect

is used for:

- an action which happened before another past action or before a stated time in the past.
She had already cooked dinner when her husband came home. (She cooked dinner first and then her husband came.)

- an action which finished in the past and whose result was visible in the past.
When I saw Steve yesterday he was happy because he had found a new job.

- The Past Perfect is the past equivalent of the Present Perfect.
