Clauses of Concession

Clauses of Concession are used to express a contrast. They are introduced with the following words/phrases:

- Although / Even though / Though (informal) + clause
(‘Though’ can also be put at the end of the sentence.) Although she spent all afternoon on the project, she didn’t finish it. She spent all afternoon on the project. She didn’t finish it, though.
 - Despite / In spite of + noun / -ing form
Despite / In spite of their wealth, they aren’t happy. Despite / In spite of being rich, they aren’t happy.
 - Despite / In spite of the fact + that-clause
Despite the fact / In spite of the fact that they are rich, they aren’t happy.
 - While / Whereas / But / On the other hand / Yet + clause
He’s tall while / whereas / but / on the other hand she is short. But / Yet always come between the two clauses. Tom studied hard, but he failed the exam. Tom studied hard, yet he failed the exam.
 - Nevertheless / However + clause
John’s flat was on fire. Nevertheless, he didn’t panic. John’s flat was on fire. However, he didn’t panic.
 - However / No matter how + adjective / adverb + subject + (may) + verb
However slowly he speaks, he can’t make himself understood. No matter how slowly he may speak, he can’t make himself understood.
 - Whatever / No matter what + clause
Whatever he said, she wasn’t convinced. No matter what he said, she wasn’t convinced.
 - Adjective / Adverb + though + subject + verb / may + infinitive without to
Well-qualified though he is/he may be, he can’t find a job. Early though he left/he may have left, he didn’t arrive on time.
 - Adjective / Adverb + as + subject + verb
Careful as she is, she had an accident.
- Clauses of concession express opposition or unexpected results. Even though she is a careful driver, she had a terrible accident. (unexpected result) In spite of the rain, the game wasn’t called off. (opposition)
- A comma is used both when the clause of concession precedes and follows the main clause.
Even though she was tired, she worked overtime. She worked overtime, even though she was tired.

22 Underline the correct item.

- 1 However / Although hard he studies, he doesn't get good marks.
