

Fill the gaps with the verbs in the present or past form.
Which verbs indicate ACTION and which - STATE?

'John [redacted] me with a book,' I said. 'I [redacted] him. And I [redacted] you too!'

'You [redacted] a bad girl, Jane,' my aunt [redacted]. 'Why do you hate me?'

'You don't like me,' I [redacted]. 'John and Eliza are unkind to me. I [redacted] to leave Gateshead Hall.'

'You [redacted] to leave!' Aunt Reed said. 'Where will you go? Your parents [redacted] dead. You [redacted] live alone.'

Aunt Reed [redacted] for a moment.

'My friend, Mr. Brocklehurst, [redacted] the owner of a school,' she [redacted]. 'I will send you to Mr. Brocklehurst's school.'

Fill the gaps with appropriate word.

A few days later, Mr. Brocklehurst came [redacted] Gateshead Hall. He was a very tall man. His eyes were dark and his face was [redacted].

'Jane Eyre,' he said [redacted] me. 'God does not like bad children. God punishes bad children, Jane Eyre.'

'God will punish John Reed,' I replied. 'John Reed hits [redacted] and he shouts [redacted] me.'

'That is not true. You are a [redacted] Jane Eyre,' Mr. Brocklehurst said. 'You must not tell lies. And you must not live here [redacted] your cousins. You will come [redacted] Lowood School. You will become a good girl.'

'I want [redacted] come [redacted] your school, sir,' I said. 'I want [redacted] leave this house.'

'Bad girls are punished [redacted] my school, Jane Eyre,' Mr. Brocklehurst said. 'The girls work very hard [redacted] Lowood.'