I just arrived in Port-au-Prince, Haiti with the Lend-A-Hand volunteer team and I can't believe my eyes! The earthquake that happened four days ago has destroyed most of the buildings. This disaster has affected three million people. Thousands have lost their lives or have terrible injuries, and even more have lost their homes. Haiti suffers from hurricanes and floods every year, but this is something else! Our team's task is clearing the rubble which is everywhere!

22 January, 2010

On Tuesday, we pulled a five-year-old boy from the rubble. He was still alive after eleven days! The United Nations has offered a small wage to the people of Haiti for helping to clean up the streets. This helps them to buy food. Conditions are terrible, though. Thousands of people are living in tents with no toilets or running water. The earthquake also caused tsunamis in nearby fishing villages that damaged beaches and even swept homes out to the sea!

1 February, 2010

The whole world is helping Haiti! Rescue teams have come from places as far away as Iceland and Japan. We have cleared the main road of Port-au-Prince, so food and medical supplies will get through soon. More volunteers have just arrived. Together, hopefully, we can rebuild Haiti after this awful disaster!
