The Lion and The Mouse - Social Distancing

One afternoon, in the jungle, a lion lay asleep because he just ate lunch. A little mouse ran over his paw. He woke up and grabbed the mouse. “I am the King of the Jungle! Ahhhha! I caught you!” he said, “but I am full, so you will be my snack for later.” The mouse had to think fast to save himself.

“Excuse me Mr. King of the Jungle, can you hold me a little far away from your mouth please?” said the mouse. The lion replied, “scared I will eat you already?” “Oh, not at all,” said the mouse, “but I have a cold and a fever. We should be social distancing.” The Little Mouse then said, “maybe you should put on your mask! That way you can protect yourself.”

The Lion agreed and put down the mouse to get his mask. With that the little mouse ran away. As fast as a lightning bolt, the little mouse was gone.
