

Name: _____ Class: _____

3: Argentinian Choripan

The Argentinian choripan is street food, like the Vietnamese banh mi sandwich. You can buy it from vendors (sellers) when walking or driving.

It is a simple sandwich of chorizo (spicy sausage) and a bun. A bun is a small bread made to hold a single sandwich.

First, they put butter on the bun. Then they toast it to make it brown and hot. They cut the sausage in half, so it fits and doesn't fall out. Then they add toppings, like salsa, green onions, and chilis.

What would you put on your choripan? I would like mine with egg and chili sauce. Can I add an egg, please?

1.) Where is choripan popular?

- a Argentina
- b Argentinian
- c Vietnam

2.) Which of the following ingredients is optional?

- a bun
- b chorizo
- c egg

3.) Where can you buy choripan?

- a from chefs
- b from children
- c from street vendors

Choripan and banh mi are similar because they have the same ingredients.

Choripan and banh mi are similar because you can buy them in the street.

true | false

true | false
LIVEWORKSHEETS