

A Memorable Day: Prince Charles and Princess Diana's fairy tail* wedding.

Princess Diana's wedding to Prince Charles took place at St. Paul's Cathedral on July 29, 1981 in London. It was a dry and sunny day. The warm weather added a touch of romance to the occasion. Lady Diana left Clarence House and was transported to the main venue* in a Glass Coach with her father, Earl Spencer.

The streets of London were flooded with around 600,000 people trying to catch a glimpse* of Prince Charles and the bride-to-be on their special day. The wedding was broadcast on television and seen by around 750 million people around the world.

Princess Diana's dress was an extravagant and much-anticipated sight to see. Covered in 10,000 pearls and complete with a 25-foot train*, the longest in royal history. Diana's gown was designed by husband-and-wife design team David and Elizabeth Emanuel. Much like her dress, Princess Diana's ring has been the focus of designers and brides-to-be for many years. A 12 carat sapphire stone surrounded by 14 solitaire diamonds set in a white gold band.

This Royal wedding was an international event, known as the Wedding of the Century. It is remembered as one of the most famous weddings in royal history, even after Princess Diana and Prince Charles' divorce in 1992.
