Haresh, 11, Kashmir: I'm from Kashmir. I speak Urdu because it's the official language here – most of my classes are taught in Urdu. I also speak Kashmiri because my parents speak it at home to me, and I speak a little English at school. I think learning languages is important because it's important to communicate with people.

Samir, 12, Delhi: I live in a big city called Delhi. It is really multilingual here. I speak Punjabi at home because my older relatives don't understand any other language. Some of my friends speak different languages at home. I'm learning English at school, but I also learn lots of English by watching English cartoons on TV, so I think it's fun to learn other languages.

Mala, 11, Rajasthan: I live in Rajasthan and Hindi is my first language. I'm learning English at school. My parents speak a dialect called Malvi. I speak it a little too, but I can't write anything in Malvi. I prefer speaking and writing in Hindi. I really like watching Hindi films. I'm glad I can speak different languages.

a) Can Haresh speak English only? _____

b) Why does Samir speak Punjabi at home? _____

c) What does Mala prefer doing? _____

d) Who is the oldest, Haresh, Samir or Mala? _____
