More and more people do volunteer work in their local area. They don't have to do it. They don't earn any money and they give up their free time. So what do they do and why do they do it?

5 The city farmer, London

Chidi Oruma, 18, lives in central London. He loves animals and wants to be a vet one day. Most weekends, he works on a farm near his home! The volunteers look after animals and grow fruit and vegetables. It's a friendly place. Schools visit and sometimes the volunteers take the animals into schools.

Chidi says: 'City farms are important because kids can see real animals and plants and learn where their food comes from.'

15 The sports helper, Prague

Klára Pasek, 17, is a volunteer for the Special Olympics. The Special Olympics are for athletes with learning disabilities. The Special Olympics are every two years but the athletes have to train the whole year. Klára and the other volunteers organise sporting events and help the athletes. Klára helps the basketball team.

Klára says: 'The Special Olympics is a beautiful thing. I help the athletes but they help me, too.'

- 25 I'm a better person now - I'm more patient. I have a great time and I learn new skills.'
