

New Exhibition: The History of Houses

Come and see our new exhibition of models of houses from different periods in history.

This model of a house is from one of the first towns in the world. It's from Ancient Turkey in the year 6500 BC. The house hasn't got any doors. Do you see the people? They are entering the house from a hole in the roof.

This is a model of a house from Ancient Greece. The kitchen, a bathroom and the living room are on the ground floor. The first floor has got bedrooms and another big room. The women are eating on the first floor. They aren't eating with the men because women and men don't eat together.

This is a model of a house from Ancient Egypt. The walls and floors have got beautiful pictures on them. What are the people doing on the roof? They are sleeping there because the house is hot.

Don't miss these models and many more!

Opening Hours: Monday-Friday: 9.30 am-8.00 pm
Saturday: 10.00 am-6.00 pm, Sunday: closed

Prices: Adults: £5, Students: £3.50,
Children: £2

1. Match A to B. Drag the numbers

A

1. The History of Houses is
2. The houses in the exhibition are
3. The Turkish house is
4. The Ancient Greek house has got
5. The Egyptian house is

B

- a. two floors.
- b. hot.
- c. the name of an exhibition.
- d. models.
- e. from 6500 BC.

2. Choose the correct answer

1. Where is the History of Houses exhibition?

2. Why is there a hole in the roof of the Turkish house?

3. Where are the bedrooms in the Ancient Greek house?

4. Why has the Ancient Greek house got two dining rooms?

5. What is unusual about the floors in the Egyptian house?