READING 2 (Items 5–10) (6 marks)

Having a career is something important and necessary. Most of people think that taking a decision about the type of work they want is easy. Other people think it is very difficult. However, to make good job decisions and plans, people need lots of information. The more they know about themselves and job they want, the better they will be able to choose the best job.

In fact, the kind of jobs that people choose affect their lives in different ways. For example, it can affect where they live and the friends they make. It can also affect the amount of money they get. The job can also affect the way people feel about themselves. Jobs sometimes show how much education people have. So, by making a good decision about jobs, people can help themselves build the life they want.

People differ in their interests and abilities when they make a job decision. For most people, money is very important because it helps them to improve their lives. Other people take a job for adventure, so they don't mind going far away. Other people choose jobs that allow them to stay close to their families because they think about spending time with them and helping them. Working in a team or alone is another important thing that people need to think about when they choose a job.

In short, making good job decision depends on how people understand their interests, skills and their abilities.
