What do you think about the cases below? Discuss your thoughts.

• A 1986 sculpture "Rabbit" by Jeff Koons was sold for $91.1 million. It's the most expensive work sold by a living artist. See it here.

• An artist Marcel Duchamp changed art history forever. He turned a urinal upside down, hung it on the wall and claimed it was art. See the piece here.

• Two teenagers pranked visitors at a museum in San Francisco. They left a pair of eyeglasses on the floor so that people might think it was a work of art. Visitors started gathering around the glasses, analyzing them and thinking that they were an element of the exhibition. See what it looked like here.

• The 82-year-old Cecilia Giménez had the best of intentions when she worked on the restoration of a religious painting of Jesus (from 1930), but her skills didn't quite allow her to pull it off. Judge it for yourself! See the restoration effect here.

LIVEWORKSHEETS