Reading and Comprehension Exam:

Read the following passage carefully and answer the multiple-choice questions that follow.

Passage: In the heart of the ancient city, nestled between cobblestone streets and historic buildings, stood the renowned "Book Haven." This bookstore, with its centuries-old charm, was a treasure trove for avid readers and literary enthusiasts alike. The owner, Mr. Anderson, was passionate about preserving the magic of books in the digital age. The shelves were adorned with leather-bound classics, rare first editions, and a curated selection of contemporary novels. The aroma of aged paper and the soft creaking of wooden floors welcomed patrons into a world where time seemed to slow down.

One day, as the sun dipped below the horizon, casting a warm glow on the storefront, a young aspiring writer named Lily entered the Book Haven. Intrigued by the atmosphere, she spent hours exploring the aisles, discovering hidden gems and losing herself in the words of long-forgotten authors.

The bookstore also hosted weekly literary events, inviting local authors to share their work. Attendees would gather in a cozy corner, surrounded by shelves filled with stories, as the words of writers filled the air. The sense of community and shared love for literature became the hallmark of Book Haven.

Despite the challenges faced by independent bookstores in the modern era, Mr. Anderson's commitment to fostering a haven for book lovers remained unwavering. The Book Haven became a sanctuary for those seeking refuge from the hustle and bustle of the digital age, a place where stories transcended time and technology.
