

Writing skills practice: An invitation – writing practice

Write an email to a friend to invite him/her to do something. Think about these questions:

Who will you write to? What activity are you doing? When and where? What time are you meeting up? Who else is going with you?

The image shows a digital representation of an email composition window. At the top, there is a header bar with a signal icon, the time '10:49', and a battery icon. Below the header, the window title 'New Message' is centered. On the left, there are 'Cancel' and 'Send' buttons. The main area is divided into sections for 'To:' and 'Subject:', each with a text input field containing placeholder text (three dotted lines). Below these fields is a large, empty text area for the message body, which also contains a dotted line placeholder.
