PART 3: READING

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

PERCEPTIONS OF ANIMALS ACROSS CULTURES

When living and working in another country, there are numerous things to consider apart from the more obvious ones of climate, language, religion, currency, etc. Some important considerations are less obvious. For example, do you have a pet or do you enjoy a hobby such as horse riding? Your animal or hobby may be perceived in a completely different light in another culture so it's important to consider the significance given to specific animals in different parts of the world and general perceptions towards them.

One example which is often mentioned in popular press is the case of dogs. In some cultures, like the US or UK, dogs are loved and considered a great pet to have at home and with the family. In other cultures, such as those where Islam is the majority religion, dogs may be perceived as dirty or dangerous. Muslims treatment of dogs is still a matter of debate amongst Islamic scholars. While these animals are widely considered by many Western cultures to be „man"s best friend", the Koran describes them as "unhygienic". Muslims will therefore avoid touching a dog unless he can wash his hands immediately afterwards, and they will almost never keep a dog in their home.

In Iran, for instance, a cleric once denounced „the moral depravity" of dog owners and even demanded their arrest. If you are an international assignee living and working in Saudi Arabia or another Arabic country, you should remember this when inviting Arab counterparts to your house in case you have a dog as a pet. This is just one example of how Islam and other cultural beliefs can impact on aspects of everyday life that someone else may not even question. A Middle Eastern man might be very surprised when going to Japan, for instance, and seeing dogs being dressed and pampered like humans and carried around in baby prams!

Dogs are not the only animals which are perceived quite differently from one culture to another. In India, for example, cows are sacred and are treated with the utmost respect.

Conversely in Argentina, beef is a symbol of national pride because of its tradition and the high quality of its cuts. An Indian working in Argentina who has not done his research or participated in a cross cultural training programme such as Doing Business in Argentina may be surprised at his first welcome dinner with his Argentinean counterparts where a main dish of beef would be served.

It is therefore crucial to be aware of the specific values assigned to objects or animals in different cultures to avoid faux-pas or cultural misunderstandings, particularly when living and working in another culture. Learning how people value animals and other symbols around the world is one of the numerous cultural examples discussed in Communicaid's intercultural training courses. Understanding how your international colleagues may perceive certain animals can help you ensure you aren't insensitive and it may even provide you with a good topic for conversation.

Question 1: What does the author suggest in the last paragraph?

- A. Talking about different perceptions with others will help you overcome insensitivity.
- B. To avoid cultural shocks, people should not live or work in another culture.
- C. It's important to value the objects or animals in different countries before going there.
- D. Understanding different perceptions of animals will help you avoid faux-pas in another nation.

Question 2: According to paragraph 2, which sentence is INCORRECT?

- A. The dog is a typical example of different views in the world about animals.
- B. Dogs are well-treated and loved in the US and UK.
- C. Muslims are those considering dogs as their best pets at home.
- D. People whose religion is Islam don't like having dogs in their home.

Question 3: The word "unhygienic" in the second paragraph is closest in meaning to_____.

- A. unhealthy B. undependable C. unreliable D. unacceptable

Question 4: What does the word "this" in paragraph 3 refer to?

- A. you are an international assignee
- B. you are having a dog as pet
- C. a cleric once denounced the moral depravity of dog owners and even demanded their arrest
- D. you are living and working in Saudi Arabia or another Arabic country

Question 5: The author mentioned cows in paragraph 4 as an example of.

- A. the animals that are differently perceived in numerous cultures
- B. sacred animals in Argentina
- C. a symbol of a nation for its high quality of nutrients
- D. which may cause surprise for Argentinian people at dinner

Question 6: Which of the following could be the main idea of the passage?

- A. Perceptions of animals across cultures
- B. What should be learnt before going to another country
- C. Dogs and different beliefs in the world
- D. Muslims and their opinions about animals

Question 7: The word "pampered" in the third paragraph could be best replaced by .

- A. indulged B. taken care of C. made up D. respected

Question 8: It can be inferred from the passage that_____.

- A. people will change their perceptions of animals when living in another culture
- B. you should not be surprised if other counterparts consider your sacred animals as food
- C. there are many things to research before going to live and work in another country
- D. respecting other cultures is a good way to have a successful life abroad

You are going to read a magazine article about watching wildlife. Six paragraphs have been removed from the article. Choose from the paragraphs A – G the one which fits each gap (1-6). There is one extra paragraph which you do not need to use.

Close encounters of the wild kind

The rise of wildlife-watching experiences.

Wildlife observation has always proved inspirational for humans, it led Charles Darwin to provide us with a better understanding of how we evolved and it has inspired such everyday innovations as Velcro. US author Peter Matthiessen wrote: 'The variety of life in nature can be compared to a vast library of unread books, and the plundering of nature is comparable to the random discarding of whole volumes without having opened them and learned from them'.

1 _____

'What is interesting is how much people are willing to pay to be in a wilderness environment', says Julian Matthews, director of Discovery Initiatives, a company which takes people on small-group trips to more than 35 countries. It's still a small part of the tourism industry but it's undoubtedly expanding. There are definitely more and more people seeking wildlife experiences now'.

2 _____

Matthews recognises the contribution that television has made to our knowledge of nature, but he says 'there's no way to compare seeing an animal in the wild with watching one on TV. While a filmmaker may spend six months shooting an animal and will get closer to it than you ever will, there's no greater pleasure than seeing an animal in its own environment. On film, you're only getting the visuals and the sound. As impressive as they may be, it's not the real thing.' And the good thing is that tourists can now watch wildlife 'live' while helping to protect it – a concept that comes under the broad label of 'ecotourism'.

3 _____

In practice, this means that many tour operators, guided by ethical policies, now use the services of local communities, train local guides and have close ties to conservation projects. Tour operator Rekeru, for example, has established its own school – the Koyiaki Guide School and Wilderness Camp – for Maasai people in Kenya.

4 _____

Conservation organisations have also realised that tourism can help educate people and provide a valuable source of revenue and even manpower. The World Wildlife Fund, for example, runs trips that give donors the chance to see for themselves how their financial aid is assisting conservation projects in the field, and some organisations even allow tourists to take part in research and conservation.

5 _____

Similarly, Biosphere Expeditions takes about 200 people every year on what its field operations director, Dr Matthias Hammer, calls an 'adventure with a conscience'. Volunteers can visit six destinations around the world and take part in various activities including snow leopard, wolf and bear surveys and whale and dolphin research.

6 _____

Of course, going in search of wildlife doesn't always mean you will find it. That sightings of animals in large wild areas don't come automatically is a fact of life. Although potentially frustrating, it makes sightings all the more rewarding when they are made. And the opportunity to do something to help both the environment and local people can only add to the experience.

A He is confident that, if done properly, this combination of tourism and conservation can be 'a win-win situation', 'People have a unique experience while contributing to conservation directly. Local people and habitats benefit through job creation, research and an alternative income. Local wildlife benefits from our work.'

B While there is indeed much to learn from many species not yet known to science, it's the already opened texts that attract the majority of us, however. And we are attracted in ever increasing numbers.

C As people are able to travel to more extreme places in search of the ultimate wildlife experience, it's worth remembering that you don't have to go to the ends of the earth to catch rewarding glimpses of animals. Indeed, some of the best wildlife-watching opportunities are on our doorstep.

D This growth has been stimulated by the efforts of conservation groups and natural history documentaries. Greater awareness of the planet has led to an increased demand for wildlife tours or the addition of a wildlife-watching component to traditional holidays. People want to discover nature at first-hand for themselves – not just on a screen.

E Despite being an important part of the population there, they have largely been excluded from the benefits brought to the region by tourism. This initiative is a concerted effort to enable them to take up jobs and run programmes themselves.

F Earthwatch is a non-profit international environmental group that does just that. 'Participation in an Earthwatch project is a positive alternative to wildlife-watching expeditions, as we offer members of the public the opportunity to be on the front line of conservation,' says Claudia Eckardt, Earthwatch programme manager.

G It is a term which is overused, but the principle behind it undoubtedly offers hope for the future of many endangered species, as money from tourism directly funds conservation work. It also extends to the consideration of the interests of people living in the places that tourists visit.

Read the text below and think of the word which best fits each gap. Use only one word in each gap. There is an example at the beginning (0).

Emotion in books

Something appears to 0 have happened to the emotional content of books published in the UK. Researchers from the University of Bristol analysed the frequency with 1 _____ 'mood' words – those reflecting anger, disgust, fear, joy, sadness and surprise – were used in as 2 _____ as 5 million books between 1900 and 2000. 3 _____ to one of the researchers, Dr Alberto Acerbi, 'the average book published in 1900 has 14% more emotional content than the average book in 2000'. In 4 _____ words, 'a book with 1,000 emotional words in 1900 would have 877 in 2000'.

In 5 _____ to this decline in emotional content, the research team found that some interesting differences between British books and those published in the USA have developed since the 1960s. 6 _____ having more emotional content than their British counterparts, American books now contain more content-free words. These are words that carry 7 _____ or no meaning on their 8 _____, such as 'and' or 'but', and articles like 'the'.

What is the significance of these changes? The researchers say that further work is needed to deal with this question adequately.
