ABOUT

Some of you have asked me about school while I'm making a film. OK. Well – it's hard! Child actors like me must have 15 hours school a week, but when you're filming you can't go to normal school! I have a private teacher who teaches me on location. Like today, for example. They <sup>1</sup>..... (film) one of the scenes I'm in after breakfast this morning. That usually lasts an hour or maybe an hour and a half. Then, according to my study timetable, at 11.00 I <sup>2</sup>..... (have) a lesson in my room. I <sup>3</sup>..... (ask) my studio teacher to check through some questions I've got about yesterday's lessons. We've got less than half an hour before filming <sup>4</sup>..... (start) again at 11.20! We <sup>5</sup>..... (stop) for lunch at 12.30, like every day. Then if I'm not too tired, my parents <sup>6</sup>..... (drive) me to another studio in town to audition for another film. That <sup>7</sup>..... (start) filming next year! My studio teacher <sup>8</sup>..... (come round) again this evening at some point and give me a maths lesson. After that I <sup>9</sup>..... (do) some revising because I know I <sup>10</sup>..... (have) a test early tomorrow morning – that's before I <sup>11</sup>..... (go) into make-up at 8.00! Every day is different! But I love this life! I <sup>12</sup>..... (not / do) it forever but it's fun right now!
