

Before you read: April in Moscow:

WORD LIST with example sentences:

Look at the words in the sentences. What are they in Swedish? You will need to defer to the Swedish grammar rules when you write the right form in Swedish: a boy = en pojke; the boy = pojken

(You may use <https://bab.la/> if you want to, but forget Google Translate!)

dancer (n):	My cousin works at the Bolshoi Theatre. She is a dancer .	_____
envelope (n)	I put the envelope in the post box yesterday.	_____
suddenly (adv)	Suddenly , the apple fell from the tree.	_____
people (n)	There were a lot of people at the station.	_____
tall (adj)	The Russian dancers are tall and strong.	_____
dance (n)	Their dance is beautiful.	_____ market (n)	There is a small market nearby. Can't we go there?	_____
at weekends (adv)	I never go to school at weekends .	_____
tomorrow	"Don't worry. It is a new day tomorrow .", she says to me.	_____
arrive	The train arrived in London at 8 o'clock this morning.	_____
everyone (pron)	"I want everyone to come here!", the coach shouted.	_____
parcel (n)	You must go to the post office tonight There is a parcel for you.	_____

button (n)

There are many buttons on a remote control for the TV.

SOME INFORMATION

The Bolshoi Theatre is a famous building in central Moscow. Here you can see the Bolshoi Ballet and the Bolshoi Opera.

The Bolshoi Ballet and the Bolshoi Opera are two of the oldest and most well-known ballet and opera companies in the world.

The Bolshoi Ballet is also the world's biggest ballet company. More than 200 dancers work at the Bolshoi Ballet.