A Dancer with One Leg

1 Every year, many people run in the Boston Marathon in the USA, and thousands come to watch. In 2013, two terrorists put bombs[1] near the finish line of the marathon. The bombs killed three people and injured[2] hundreds more. One of the people watching the race was Adrianne Haslet. She was badly injured.

2 Adrianne was a professional dancer. Her injury[3] was so serious that she lost a leg. She needed to learn to use a prosthetic[4] leg. It was a hard time for her, and she was very sad, but she didn't stop trying. She slowly learned to walk, but her doctors said that she would never dance again.

3 Later that year, Professor Hugh Herr visited Adrianne. He decided to help her by building a better prosthetic leg for her. This prosthetic leg needed to be very special because most prosthetic legs are just for walking, not dancing. For two hundred days, the professor's team studied how dancers move. Then they used what they learned to build a new prosthetic leg for Adrianne.

4 Finally, in 2014, Adrianne danced on stage again. When she dances today, it doesn't look like she ever lost a leg. Also, Adrianne didn't stop there – she went on to do another amazing thing. When she was injured in 2013, Adrianne was only watching the marathon, but three years later, she competed in the marathon! It took her more than 10 hours to complete the race, but she finished. Today, Adrianne is a well-known role model and tells her story to large audiences around the world.

[1]bombs = פצצות
[2]injured = פצעו
[3]injury = פציעה
[4]prosthetic = תותבת
