On New Year's Eve (December 31st), people throw parties and hold fireworks displays to welcome in the New Year. During these festivities, friends and families share a toast with champagne or sparkling cider, make resolutions, and tell each other their hopes for the coming year.

In some cultures, specific foods are eaten during the celebration of New Year's. For example, in Spain, they eat twelve grapes at midnight to bring good luck - one grape for each month of the new year! In Japan, temple bells are rung 108 times as part of a Buddhist tradition called Joya no Kane.

No matter how it is celebrated, New Year's is always an exciting time full of hope and possibility. As the clock strikes 12:00 am on January 1st, everyone cheers for the start of a new year and the opportunities that come with it.
