

DICTOGLOSS

Try to complete all the gaps in the text.

Communication is the act of transferring from one place, person, or group to

The different of communication include communication, non-verbal communication, visualizations, and communication.

Written communication is a formal and flexible method which includes, e-mails, media, books, magazines, the, and other media. Until recent, a relatively small number of and were very when it came to communicating the written, Today, we all write and our online, which has led to an of information and communication

Email, short for "electronic", is one of the widely used features of the Internet, along with the, It allows you to and messages to and from anyone with an email, anywhere in the