Does he/she/it have to/need to pay?	Yes, he/she/it does.	No, he/she/it doesn't.

Have to and need to are different from most modal verbs. They change after he/she/it and use do/does in questions and negatives, like all main verbs.

2 have to or need to?

We use have to

- when it is important to do something because there is a rule or a law:
You have to put a card down. (It's a rule of the game.)
Cars have to pay to cross the bridge. Do you have to be a member to use the gym?
- when it is necessary to do something; we cannot choose not to do it:
I have to get up early tomorrow – the train leaves at 6.45 a.m.

We use need to

- when we think something is necessary or a good idea:
I need to earn some more money. She needs to talk to her doctor.
- when something is necessary for our body or health:
I need to go to bed early tonight – I'm very tired. You need to drink more water.

NATURAL ENGLISH In everyday English we often use the short form have got to ('ve/'s got to). It means the same as have to:
I've got to get up early tomorrow to catch the train.

3 don't have to or don't need to?

We use don't have to and don't need to when it is NOT necessary to do something:
Cyclists don't have to/need to pay to cross the bridge – there's no charge for bicycles.
We don't have to/need to get up early tomorrow – it's Sunday.

! It is possible to use needn't for don't need to. We use it with the infinitive without to:
~~✗ You needn't to pay. I've got enough money.~~ ✓ You needn't pay. I've got enough money.
