

1 VOCABULARY: Willingness and unwillingness

A Circle the correct words to complete the sentences.

- Alexandra _____ work at home because she doesn't think she would get a lot of work done.
a is eager to b is reluctant to
- Morgan _____ be his own boss. He likes making his own schedule and not having to explain his actions to anyone.
a is more than happy to b has no desire to
- I _____ communicate with coworkers via text message because I don't want to share my cell phone number.
a am unwilling to b have no intention of
- Alisha doesn't like to wake up early. She _____ change her work schedule.
a hesitates to b is dying to
- If an employee _____ driving to work every day, he or she might look for a job that involves working from home.
a is passionate about b is against
- When starting your own business at home, you have to _____ separate your work time from your leisure time, so that you don't work too much.
a be prepared to b be anxious to

2 GRAMMAR: Conditionals: alternatives to if

A Circle the correct words or phrases to complete the sentences.

- We can have our meeting via video call as long as / unless the internet connection is strong.
- My boss said I can work at home even if / providing I come into the office once a month.
- A company is successful only if / even if the employees are happy and productive.
- I won't work from home unless / providing that I move to a bigger house.
- I don't mind working in an office even if / provided that I can set my own schedule.
- I love working at home and wouldn't go back to an office, so long as / even if you paid me more money.
- I will invest in your business, but only if / unless you give me a percentage of your profits.
- You can take a long vacation unless / so long as you finish your work before you go.