To: Samantha Wallace, Edward Kershaw

From: Ted Winters

Subject: Changes

Date: June 10

I've been giving some thought to an idea, and I'd like to find out what _____ of you think about it. Since the Sales and Marketing departments collaborate so much, I'm considering putting the two offices in the same room. So Sales would no longer be on the first floor, _____ would Marketing be on the third floor. Instead, they'll be on the second floor in a large, open area.

There will be no individual offices except for those of the director and assistant director of each department.

I believe this would foster a sense of teamwork between the members of both departments. By _____ what the salespeople are doing, the marketing people could create better advertisements and devise more ways to induce shoppers to buy our products. And by learning how the marketers think, the sales staff could come up with more effective ways to pitch our products.

What do you two think of this proposal? _____
