Before Stone Age, people used to eat fruits, leaves, and anything they found from the forest. However, this habit changed into hunting animals, preserving food items, and planting and growing vegetables, which eventually led to farming different crops like maize, corn, and rice. People were healthy, they rarely had diseases and never needed extra exercise because their daily work kept their bodies running.

At present, we have turned agriculture into a mass scale production, including machinery, technology, and pesticides, all of which came in with the green revolution. With the green revolution agriculture and the traditional farming culture turned upside down. Nowadays, farmers who are able to cope up with multinational cooperation and their large-scale, expensive products, keep producing crops for the market. However, the traditional, low-income farmers even today, especially in Asian countries, are in a terrible state.

Fast food is another major factor in modern food habits. Although many people find it convenient, it leads to many health conditions. Today people are unhealthy, need medicine, and function on diets and exercise machines.
