ANSWER

While some say that they prefer to consume local cuisines for their diet, others argue that they choose fast food because of its superior value. In my opinion, I agree with the first view. This essay will discuss both perspectives before providing a conclusion.

On the one hand, there are a variety of compelling reasons why fast food is a good choice. First, fast food is convenient and time-saving. One explanation for this is that you can prepare it quickly and with little effort in the kitchen. Moreover, people can easily grab a bite at any fast food restaurants in many megacities. Secondly, fast food is also famous for its delicious taste. For example, there are a huge number of successful fast food chains in the world which are suitable for all of ages, especially for the young.
