The text for questions number 3 to 5

The man I admire the most is my Dad. He is forty years old. He has short and black hair. He is quite handsome with his neat police uniform. He has tall and strong body.

My Dad is a hero for me. He guards, defends, and takes care of me well. He is an example of masculinity for me and my brother. One more thing that makes me admire him is his hard working spirit. He works from morning until late at night. In other words, he often works over time. He sometimes feels tired, but he still gives me and my brother enough attention, though sometimes he does it by phone.

My Dad teaches me and my only brother to be brave children. Furthermore, he also teaches us to be friendly and helpful. When we got a problem at school, he tells us to solve it ourselves, of course, with good solution and wise ways. When we get difficulties, then he will help us. My Dad is definitely the man who deserves respect and admiration.

This Text is for questions 6 to 9

Orangutan is a species of great apes originated from Indonesia and Malaysia. The name was derived from two words in Melayu language, the first word is “orang” which means “human” and the second word is “utan” which means “forest”. It is recorded that orangutan have 96.4 % DNA similarities to human. They also behave like human in their daily life.

Nowadays, they can only be found in the rainforest of Sumatra and Borneo. There are two sub- species of orangutan, they are: the Bornean orangutan (Pongopygmaeus) and the Sumatran orangutan (Pongoabelii).

Orangutan have two legs and two hands. They have four long fingers and a thumb on their hands which allow them to perform some activities like humans. They have a huge and fat body, large neck, long arms and short legs. They don't have any tail. An adult orangutan can reach the body height of 1,5m with the body weight around 50 to 100 kg.
