The quickest way to travel around the world is to fly, but it is rather (a) as there is nothing to see. However, if you are worried about carbon emissions and don't mind a bit of (b), then why not go by cargo ship? Yes, it sounds very (c) and is almost certainly (d) for anyone who doesn't have lots of time, so it certainly isn't for you if you are an (e) person. Probably the biggest (f) is that you need to be flexible as the departure date can easily change, so it's a rather (g) way of trying to reach your destination for something like a meeting. However, you will certainly have an (h) experience as only one of a few passengers among a crew that is (i) to be more than 20 or so.
