must and have to

Must and have to are very similar, but there is a small difference. We normally use have to for a general obligation (a rule at work / school or a law). We normally use must for a personal obligation (one that the speaker imposes), e.g. a teacher to students or a parent to a child. But often you can use either must or have to.

mustn't and don't have to Mustn't and don't have to have completely different meanings. Compare:

You mustn't go. = It's prohibited. Don't go.
You don't have to go. = You can go if you want to, but it's not obligatory / necessary.

Impersonal you

We often use have to and must with impersonal you (you = people in general), e.g.
You have to wear a seatbelt in a car. You mustn't take photos in the museum.

READING AND LISTENING

I will survive (in Spanish)... or will I?

The British have a reputation for being bad at learning languages, but is it really true? I work for a newspaper which was doing a series of articles about this. As an experiment, they asked me to try and learn a completely new language for one month. Then I had to go to the country and do some 'tests' to see if I could 'survive' in different situations. I decided to learn Spanish because I would like to visit Spain and Latin America in the future. If I go, I don't want to be the typical Brit who expects everyone else to speak English.

Spanish because I would like to visit Spain and Latin America in the future. If I go, I don't want to be the typical Brit who expects everyone else to speak English.

I did a one-month intensive course in Spanish at a language school in London. I was a complete beginner but I soon found that some Spanish words are very similar to English ones. For example, hola isn't very different from 'hello' and inglés is very similar to 'English'. But other things were more difficult, for example the verbs in Spanish change for each person and that means you have to learn a lot of different endings. My biggest problem was the pronunciation. I found it very difficult to pronounce some letters in Spanish, especially r and j. I downloaded sentences in Spanish onto my phone and I listened and repeated them again and again.

When my course finished I went to Madrid for the weekend to do my tests. A Spanish teacher called Paula came with me and gave me a mark out of 10 for each test and then a final mark for everything.

Which test do you think was the easiest for Max? Which do you think was the most difficult? Listen to Max doing the tests in Madrid and check your answers.

Listen again. Mark the sentences T (true) or F (false). Correct the false information.

1 The waiter didn't understand Max.

2 The bill was six euros.

3 The chemist's was the first street on the right.

4 The driver understood the name of the stadium.

5 Max made a grammar mistake when he left the voicemail message.

6 Max's final mark was eight.

7 Max says you can learn Spanish in a month.
