

Ana and Luis were thrilled about their first dinner in Rome. They chose a restaurant recommended by their travel guide, known for its authentic Italian cuisine. As they entered, they were captivated by the cozy atmosphere and the soft music playing in the background. They noticed tables filled with families and couples enjoying their meals. "This place must be good!" Luis remarked.

As they sat down, a friendly waiter approached to take their order. Ana, with her English audiobook in mind, dared to order in English, "Could you recommend some typical dish from the region?" The waiter smiled, pleased with her effort, and suggested classic carbonara and a Margherita pizza, two emblematic dishes of Rome.

While waiting for their food, Ana and Luis enjoyed a glass of Italian red wine, chatting about the wonders they had seen that day in the city. The food arrived, and they were impressed with the flavors and presentation. "This is amazing!" Luis exclaimed, as Ana nodded, savoring each bite of her delicious pasta.

The dinner concluded with a traditional Italian dessert and an espresso. As they paid the bill, Luis whispered, "This has been the best start to our journey. I can't wait to see what else Rome has in store for us!"
