The Story of Batara Guru

Once upon a time, there was an evil giant. He was called Batara Kala: He liked to kill people. His hair was made from fire. Everybody was frightened of him.

One day, The Chief of Gods, Batara Guru, invited all the gods and goddesses to drink sacred water in paradise. The water was called Tirta Amertasari. Anyone who drank the water, he or she would live forever.

Because Batara Kala was not invited, he secretly flew into Paradise and stole some of the water and drank it. Unfortunately the God of Sun, Batara Surya, and the God of Moon, Batara Chandra, knew what he did. They reported what Batara Kala had done to Batara Visnu, the keeper god of universe.

Batara Visnu took his weapon, cakra, and shot it to Batara Kala. It hit him on the neck. Batara Kala's body was separated from head at once but his head was alive. He was very furious with Batara Surya and Batara Chandra. He swore to take revenge on them.

The giant, Batara Kala, then chased Batara Surya and Batara Chandra. He caught and swallowed them up. Fortunately, Batara Surya and Batara Chandra could escape from Batara Kala's throat because he had no longer his body.

The emperor of China heard this and wanted the pearl. He sent his two sons, Wee Ping and Wee San to Borneo to steal it. The princes, together with one hundred soldiers, set sail for Borneo in twelve sailing junks.

When they arrived in Borneo, they set out immediately to find the famous mountain. Their journey up the rugged slopes of Mount Kinabalu proved very difficult. The dragon guarded his cave very fiercely and killed many of their soldiers.

Then, Wee San had a clever idea. He climbed a tall tree, so he could see the dragon's cave. He noted what time the dragon left his cave to hunt for food and what time he returned to it.

Next, he ordered his men to make a fake pearl and a large kite. He waited until the dragon left his cave. Then, he placed the fake pearl in a bag, slung it across his shoulder and flew up to the mountain-top on the kite. He exchanged the real pearl for the fake one and then his brother pulled his kite back to the ground.
